Alef Education Publishes Digital-First Integrated Annual Report as Capital Markets Shift Toward AI-Readable Corporate Reporting

Abu Dhabi, UAE – 18 March 2026 – Alef Education, a UAE-based global leader in education technology, has published its 2025 Integrated Annual Report, presented in a digital-first format designed to provide investors and stakeholders with an interactive and connected view of the company's strategy, governance, platform capabilities, and performance.

The report introduces Alef Education's Value Creation Model, which connects strategy, operations, and performance within a unified framework, explaining how the company creates, sustains, and maximises long-term value through its digital platform for education systems.

Designed for digital navigation, the report enables readers to move seamlessly across strategy, performance, and capital outcomes while maintaining an integrated perspective on the business. It also features the AI-Powered Annual Report Reading Assistant (AIPARA), which enhances the experience through intelligent search and contextual guidance.

The initiative reflects a broader view on how capital markets consume corporate information, as analysts, investors, and AI systems search, compare and analyse disclosures dynamically rather than reading sequentially from beginning to end.

As artificial intelligence tools increasingly scan and interpret corporate disclosures, the structural architecture of annual reports is becoming as important as the information they contain. Companies are beginning to rethink how they structure reports to ensure information remains visible, searchable, and interpretable within AI-assisted capital market environments.

By presenting its Integrated Annual Report in a digital-first format, Alef Education also aims to strengthen transparency and drive investor engagement while contributing to the continued evolution of Abu Dhabi's capital markets ecosystem.

Amit Choudhary, CFO of Alef Education said: "Capital markets are shifting away from reading annual reports sequentially. They now search, assess, compare, and meticulously analyse them through AI tools. In many ways, AI systems are now becoming the first readers of corporate disclosures. This shift means the annual report can no longer be treated as a design exercise. Structure, or how information is laid out to be discovered, interpreted, and analysed by the digital capital market, is of utmost importance."

By publishing our report in a digital-first format, Alef Education is contributing to a broader shift in how companies communicate value. Together with Abu Dhabi's capital markets ecosystem, we have an opportunity not just to follow global best practices but to help establish new standards in how corporate information is structured for the digital age."
